Q: How to format a query from a sqlite database I have created a database using my Sqlite Database Browser. It is a very simple database, but for some reason I am struggling to get the output that I want. This is the code that I currently have: public Cursor test() { String selectQuery = "SELECT * FROM " + TABLE_NAME; SQLiteDatabase db = this.getWritableDatabase(); Cursor c = db.rawQuery(selectQuery, null); return c; } public String[] getAllTitles() { String[] columns = new String[] { KEY_TITLE }; Cursor c = db.query(TABLE_NAME, columns, null, null, null, null, null); return c.getColumnNames(); } Can anyone please help? A: First of all you should not use rawQuery to select your data. The recommended way to get data from a database is to use CursorLoader and LoaderManager. You need to adapt your adapter to the cursor. I would use a listview to display the data with this adapter and add a simple cursor loader as described here. A: You should try to use CursorLoader instead of rawQuery. Using rawQuery you are loosing any sort of caching and optimization. Q: Cannot find module 'google-play-services-places' I am trying to implement the 'google-play-services' to my project. So that I can sync my database with the google cloud. I have added the jar file to my project. It is working fine. But I am getting this error while trying to add 'places' in my project. I am using eclipse kepler. Cannot

LastPass is a web service that creates and stores passwords in a way that's secure and easy to use. LastPass offers 2-factor authentication and free and paid plans. The application manages the login information for LastPass customers, enables 2-factor authentication, and stores most of the passwords and information you need to log into the web, without the need for you to type the same password more than once. The app gives you a free username and password for LastPass, and you can use that to safely log into your LastPass account from anywhere. If you have a LastPass account, the app will ask you to log in. Each time you log in, LastPass generates a new randomly-generated password, which is emailed to the email address associated with your LastPass account. You can set up to 10 email addresses for different LastPass services. Some LastPass services, such as you.yourdailylife.com, require a new password each time you log in, so you'll need to generate a new one each time. Login Log into the web using your LastPass account. You can either use the same account that's used to sign in to your web browsers, or a different account for an additional layer of protection. To log into the web, navigate to the page, click the link, and type your email address and password. If you are logging into the web using a different account, it is recommended that you use the same username you use to log into LastPass. If you are using a different username, you will be asked to enter the correct username. After you log in, you can generate new password for your account, and optionally change your Master Password. Master Password Set up a strong Master Password to secure your account. You can change your Master Password at any time. You can use a separate Master Password for each service where you have an account, or choose the option to use the same Master Password for all your LastPass accounts. Use a separate Master Password Use a separate Master Password for each account. The separate Master Password should be different from your password for the LastPass account itself. You can also use a separate Master Password for the LastPass account. You may change your Master Password at any time. You can also use the option to use a separate Master Password for the LastPass account. If you change your Master Password, you'll be asked to update it in the LastPass account. The updated Master Password will be sent to your LastPass account. You'll then be asked to update your Master Password in the LastPass account. When you use the same Master Password for all your LastPass accounts, a warning will be displayed at login. This is because you won't be able to change your Master Password when you first set up LastPass. Please note that all password information is stored in a highly secure, offline, encrypted format. Only you
